Part 3: Report:

When I interviewed some new students, many of them showed great enthusiasm. Their faces were nervous, probably because of their studies. Some people care a lot about their studies, but others are more about the quality of life.

I interviewed these people before I found out that they care about two things. The first is study and curriculum, the second is life and entertainment. So I'm going to focus more on those two parts.

I found several questions with similar themes. So I can do a more interesting survey. Ask useful questions for a short period of time.
